Squad Status

One of the core features of SoccerPulse is Squad Status, which collects detailed information from players prior to the start of training.

Players will submit daily questionnaires which indicate their soreness, fatigue, stress, sleep and mood on a scale of 1-10.

Collectively, these values give us an idea of how ready that player is to perform.

Players can also add comments or indicate a particular body part which is sore.

Training Intensity

Knowing how well your team is feeling doesn't matter much if you can't tell how intense your training sessions are.

Once your training schedule has been added, players will be prompted to say how intense the session was on a scale of 1 to 10 with 10 being max intensity.

From the home screen, coaches will receive a prompt to view the data for any event that took place that day.

In graph view, coaches can see a bar chart view of all the players who participated in the event and the team average.

Team Form allows coaches to rate their players performances after training sessions and games.

The rating scale starts at a default of 6.0 which can then be increased or decreased by the coach, depending on how the player performed.

Coaches can also add comments to their ratings, to give the player more context for things they can improve on.

Want to know who your best player was in training for the last 9 months? Now you can.

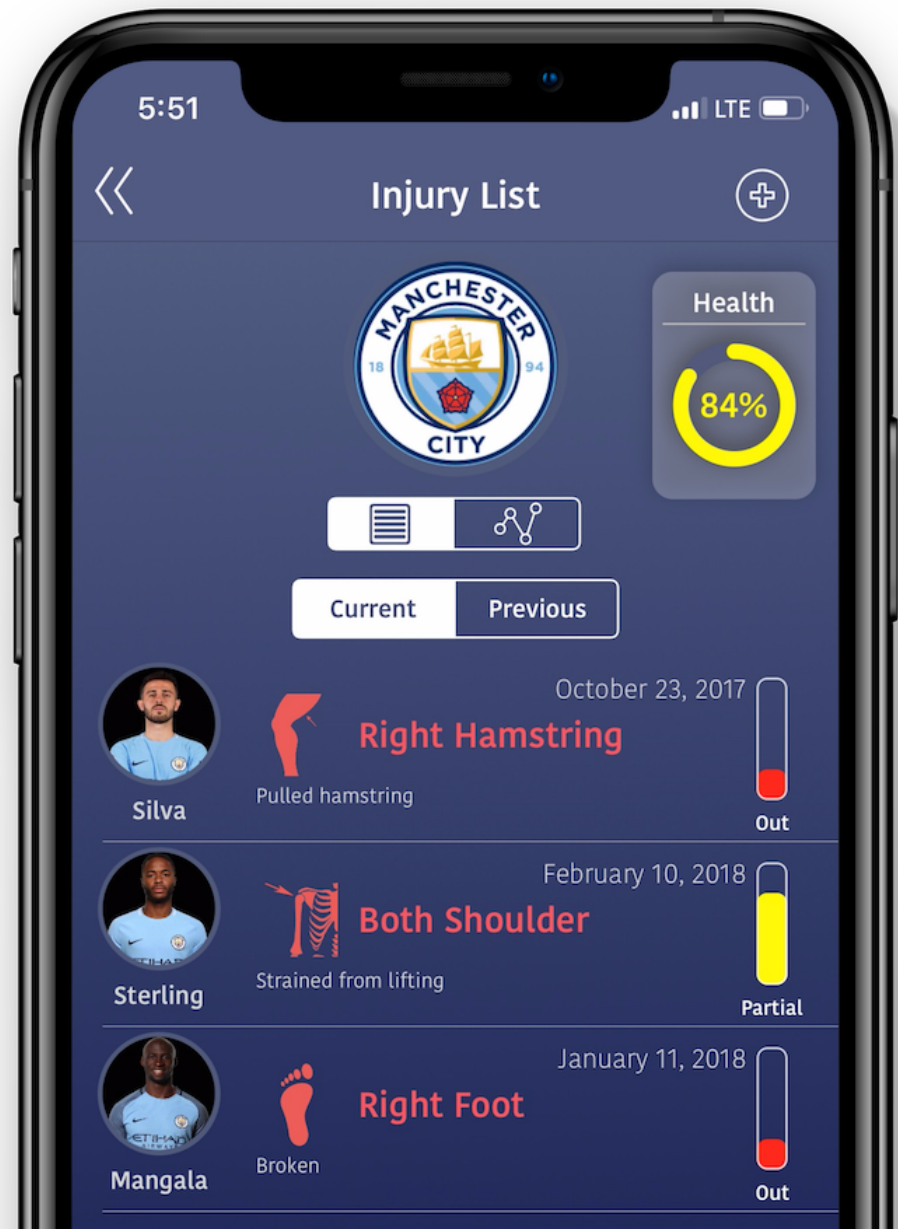

Injury List

Maintaining a healthy and available squad is crucial to playing and competing at a top level.

Players are able to add injuries when they submit their daily wellness questionnaire, and will also indicate how much they can participate in training.

In graph view, coaches can see the total breakdown of injuries based on location, including the total days injured, the most commonly injured body part, as well as the number of current injuries.

Player Development

Our newest feature on iOS is Player Development, which allows coaches to give detailed evaluations and track improvement over each of the 32 unique abilities.

Players receive an overall score based on their strengths, weaknesses, and playing position.

Coaches can swipe left on the Overall Score to change the position that the player plays, to see if the player's skillset might be better suited to a different position on the pitch.

Player Development is currently only available on iOS devices but we are working hard to bring it to Android as soon as possible!

Simple Set Up

Having access to all the features of SoccerPulse wouldn't mean anything if collecting the data was difficult.

Luckily, set up for SoccerPulse is incredibly simple. There's no expensive equipment to buy, and players are completely free.

To get started, just download the app, create a Coach Account, and choose your subscription.

Tell your players to download the app, create a Player Account, and request to join a team. Once accepted, they'll be into the team and you're ready to start.

What the Coaches Are Saying

"I have to tell you...I love SoccerPulse. The players like the simplicity and the modern graphics (these kids all grew up with PlayStation etc) so it's attractive to them.

I like the ease of getting both big picture and more specific feedback. It's also really easy for me to send messages and ask for feedback from those who are late or in fact anytime I feel I want to know where they are at.

I will in the near future begin to introduce to all the Academy teams."
